Precinct Station. It was at this point that the girl, acting or Healey's advice, disappeared and went to her home alone.

Both men were detained until morning, when they were brought before Judge Eggers, Healey as a prisoner and McCabe as a witness. Healey told the story narrated above, while McCabe denied that he had used offensive language or insulted the broker or his companion. His friend corroborated his statement, and claimed that Healey struck without any provocation. Judge Eggers, evidently believed Healey's story, for he discharged him after telling him that he had a perfect right to thrash any man who was ungentlemanly enough to insult a respectable woman. McCabe also left the courtroom.

There were specimens, however, which presented the appearance of oxylates, and, I remember, impressed me specially as being uric acid. I DO NOT PRETEND TO ACCOUNT FOR THE MODE OF THEIR SOLUTION BY THE BUFFALO LITHIA WATER
